

'Service' Clubs, Here's Your Chance..... We Need A New Campus!

Last week El Don pointed out a REAL unselfish service that the so-called "service" groups could do, IF THEY BUT WANTED: stimulation of interest in the drive for a new Santa Ana Junior college campus!

This week we go on record as being distinctly nauseated with the attitude of these organizations for their apparent lack of interest in the proposal.

INITIATIVE, UNSELFISHNESS, and the desire to do SERVICE for the college are (or at least should be) the prime requisites for campus club membership. Evidently, however, being a "good-time Charley" is the first essential for membership here.

While we do not propose to debate the merits or demerits of campus organizations in that sense alone, we are endeavoring to stimulate among club members the desire to accomplish something concrete for THEIR COLLEGE.

Now Davie Don is quite a young man—a little more than 20 years old. In those years he has seen students come and go. He has viewed with pride the accomplishments of Santa Ana's illustrious junior collegians.

Davie Don has seen jaysee grow into a fine institution of learning, from which many excellent men and women have graduated and made their places in the world. He has reveled in the fulfillments of hard-working students; he has cheered the athletic teams on to victory, and has given words of encouragement in time of need. But better yet, Davie has been looking into the future with the hope that the Dons would continue to fight in the same manner as the early pioneers after whom the college is nick-named.

We begin to believe that Davie is disappointed—disappointed because he sees the campus organizations which have dedicated themselves to service for the college have fallen down on the job!

One outstanding thing about our Davie, though, and that is he can't be kept down! And there is the one bright spot! He will be the guiding spirit that will lead us out of darkness.

At present there are four men's and five women's service clubs. All these combined total approximately 235 students.

Surely, out of a block of students representing about one-fourth of the total enrollment, there are a few who have some definite ideas or convictions on the subject of a new campus!

Surely, there are enough people in these "service" organizations who would be willing to spend a little of their time to seriously discuss the situation. Surely, there are at least a FEW who believe they would derive a little personal satisfaction for having accomplished something for their alma mater.

El Don has some definite ideas which might possibly be worked out. However, we are convinced that the clubs could map out some course of procedure by a little study.

If the clubs are genuinely desirous of carrying this plan through as challenged by the paper, we will gladly lend our fullest support. We have been fighting for over a year for a new campus. And now we believe some other campus instrument should enter the fight. But the decision rests in the hands of the campus leaders!—The Editor

P. S. The columns of the paper are always open, a la The Register, for all comments on the subject.

At the meeting the former Associated Student president will tell why a college should have student government and how it should be obtained.

The southern Junior college organization is made up of administrators of different junior colleges in Southern California. They hold these meetings each month in order to discuss the different college problems that arise, stated Mr. Hammond.

At 27, holder of a Ph.D. degree! That is the story of a former local junior college student, according to word received here today. Not only has Manfred Mueller, the young man in question, earned the degree, but he has written a chemistry syllabus which is now being used at San Francisco Jaysee where he is an instructor.

The youthful doctor of philosophy earned the title last year at the University of California at Berkeley. The former jaysee student has been working for about two years on his syllabus which is being used as a laboratory manual for courses in institutional vocations such as physical education, hygiene, nursing, and public health. ### Director Explains Need For Jaysee Campus Here

Within four years, Santa Ana Junior college will be forced to have a new campus if present enrollment increases are maintained.

This statement was voiced today by Director D. K. Hammond, in a plea for added cooperation in providing for a new jaysee campus.

"We started as a used garment," Director Hammond said, "and are now adding comparatively valueless additions in the form of bungalows and scattered small buildings."

The present college setup will never accommodate more than 900 students, while at present there are well over 800, Mr. Hammond cited.

"It is only a matter of time before some definite action will be taken by the board committees in charge of the new campus push," he stated.

Essential additions within the next year were mentioned, which include an additional mechanical drawing and commerce room. In addition, it was pointed out, gymnasium facilities are being cramped, and YMCA authorities are showing uneasiness about the number of lockers which must be used by college students.

Many of the jaysee buildings are owned by elementary schools, which are paid rent by the college.

TRICKEY'S TRIPE

LARRY TRICKEY

Happened to get hold of a copy of the Weekly Torch, that witty little news-sheet of Fullerton jaycee, and in its weighty columns was rather prominent article commenting on the Dons "monopolizing county gridders."

The author succeeded in getting a few choice phrases into print that should be passed on to those of us whom it concerns. We might add that he possibly created this bit of heroic journalism immediately after being suddenly awakened in the middle of a joicy night-mare. Or it might have been something he ate.

Here are some brilliant bits from the editorial. Concerning the recent trend of Brea star athletes in patriculating in this general direction, the article said, "Geographically Fullerton is the logical junior college for Brea students to attend, but financially Santa Ana is logical."

Also that, "It (meaning SA JC) has chiseled into one of Fullerton's sources of athletes." Isn't that something! Could it be possible that some heretofore misguided up-county prep stars have at long last learned that a beautiful campus, imposing buildings, and a large student body may not be everything.

Is it possible that they have thought of the far superior coaching staff, the equal chance for all to perform unhindered by a coach's prejudice, the recognition of Don athletes upon graduation?

The article goes on to say in a rather whining, pitiful voice, "With Santa Ana now taking the pick from other possible sources of athletes we might have in addition to our own high school, what chance have we to hold any place at all in the athletic world?"

Here is another phrase along that same line: "Shall we allow athletics (in FJC) to become a weak, doddering invalid which will some day die out as far as any prestige at all is concerned?"

However, no recommendations as to just what "we" would do to alleviate these "appalling" conditions were stated in the editorial.

But here is the choicest bit of it: "With Santa Ana, upopposed any way, reaching out like a mighty Frankenstein to engulf athletes into the college to add to its ever-growing prowess."

Now we know the lad had a night-mare! But we all got a good laugh out of it, anyway.

Rugger Outplay Majors In Tie

Showing a new aggressiveness, Don rugger surprised the unbeaten but tied Pasadena Majors by outplaying them in a scoreless deadlock at the Municipal bowl last Friday night.

Santa Ana came close to winning on two occasions when Danny Boyd, standoff half, narrowly missed a pair of penalty kicks. The Dons had the Majors down on their own goal line several times, but a strong Pasadena defense thwarted the attack.

Standouts for the local rugger were forwards Bill Semnacher, Carl Benson, Tommy Anderson, Jerry Nesmith, Grant Kellar, Glen Cave, Bob Faul, and Bill Twist.

Fred Kobayshi, Danny Boyd, John Joseph, Bob Pannell, Larry Timken, Bill Wilson and Hal Tucker, backs, also turned in fine games.

Leivermann Leads Dons In Points

With big Cy Leivermann leading the pack by piling up a total of 260 points in 23 games, followed by "Chuck" Hall, who gathered 195 tallies in 25 contests, Coach Blanchard Beatty's cagers heaved the casaba through the hoop for a total of 1030 points in 33 practice and league games during the season just closed.

Nearest competitors of Hall and Leivermann were Ted DeVelbiss, freshman who is well on his way toward becoming a three-letter man, with 97 counters in 18 games; and Ken Marshall, sophomore, with 80 in 27 games.

Def Holan, tall guard, managed 40 points, but took part in 29 games. Holan topped the squad in number of games played, specializing in clever ball handling rather than point-gathering.

Largest single-game score was the 11-basket effort of Leivermann in the final game of the season against Riverside.

Hockey Team Loses 1-0 To Long Beach Girls

In a close game at playday last Saturday the girls' hockey team was defeated by Long Beach 1-0, on the Long Beach Poly High field. The other game put Fullerton over Compton 4-1.

No winner was named from the four colleges participating the object of playday being more for social contact and sportsmanship rather than mere victory.

The Santa Ana girls also lost the three tennis matches they participated in at play day.

Sports In Review

This week saw Santa Ana's 'Tex' Oliver arrive at Oregon university to take over his new coaching position.

Don rugger fought to a 0-0 deadlock Friday night at the Municipal bowl with the unbeaten Pasadena Majors.

Plans also were laid this week for an all star rugby game, set for March 19, with ace players from 10 clubs competing.

Closing with a .500 season, Blanchard Beatty's Don quintet lost to Riverside jaycee on their floor, Saturday night, with a score of 43-37.

Don trackmen were outclassed Saturday when they made their debut in the Southern California college relays at Ontario.

By Wednesday, the track at Poly field had become a flooded headache to jaycee track and baseball enthusiasts, and all practices have been called off until a drier date.

A notice reading, "No rugby this week. No game Friday.—signed, Sir Reginald," marked the bulletin board in College hall Wednesday and disclosed the weatherman's effect on the rugby efforts for the week.

Cancelled due to lack of practice, the UCLA-Don swimming meet set for next Tuesday has been postponed to a later date.

Cagers End Season In Upper Division

Don cagers were today basking in the light of their best season in several years, despite dropping a close 43-37 struggle with Riverside in the final game of the season, last week. Coach Beatty's men ended in a third place tie with Riverside and San Bernardino.

Cy Leivermann, hitting the hoop consistently, garnered 22 counters, more than the rest of his teammates combined.

The final game saw Verne Rutledge and Kenneth Marshall, lettermen guards, play their last game of jaycee basketball. They are the only losses through graduation of Coach Beatty's this year's squad.

With Fullerton on top, followed by Chaffey, Eastern conference play awaited only a playoff between the two leaders to declare "closed season" on all cage activities.

Jess Haxton Hired Again As Coach

Clearing up a two-month muddle, Coach Jess Haxton, who had been "removed" as jaycee swimming mentor by the WPA, was today hired by the junior college to act as swimming mentor for the present season.

Haxton in one season lifted Santa Ana from last place in the Southern California Junior college swimming conference to runner-up for the championship.

This year's squad, built around a nucleus of four lettermen, Drennan Ahern, Bob Prescott, Melvin Hill, and Kenneth Oliphant, has been given an even chance to battle Fullerton's perennial champion Yellowjackets for the title.

First Don All-Time Basketball Five Named Today By Coach Beatty

Coach Blanchard Beatty today chose the Don's first all-time basketball squad from the members of the three jaycee teams he has guided here.

Three of the players chosen for the first team played on this year's squad. Cy Leivermann, Art Heinisch, and Charles Hall were honored.

Ball Squad In Serious Mood

With early season workouts indicating what may be the strongest baseball team in recent years, Coach Blanchard Beatty's horsehiders knuckled down to serious training for their first practice games next week.

A squad of nearly 30 is expected to provide material for a winning club. Five lettermen from last season's team and a crop of promising rookies are battling it out for first string positions.

At present, the squad will depend on Catcher Duane Teel and Pitcher Jack McClure as the starting batterymen, with Art Nieblas ready to relieve McClure on the mound. Art Heinisch, another possible chucker, may develop into the starting pitcher, Beatty intimated, although at present he is being used in the outfield.

Around the infield, Beatty has Verne Rutledge at the first sack; Art Schwarting, Ernie Barrett, and Al Lopez, second basemen; Erwin Youel, Paul Wise and Gil Nehrig a shortstop; and third baseman Hal Jessee.

Outfielders include "Chuck" Stafford, Larry Timken, Joe Anton, Ray Huntzinger, Lloyd Barnes, Dallas Chipman, Edwin Cox, Virgil Stevens, Don Rader, Elmer Meyer, and Les Meyers. Meyers also may be used as a catcher.

Ted DeVelbiss, Lynn Arnett, and Ken Marshall of the current team were named on Coach Beatty's second team.

From his first-year five, Beatty picked Tom Lacy, Bob Schwarm, Harold Youel, and Fred Erdhaus.

The complete selections:

First team: Forwards: Tom Lacy and Art Heinisch. Center: Cy Leivermann. Guards: Bob Schwarm and Charlie Hall.

Second team: Forwards: Ted DeVelbiss and Harold Youel. Center: Fred Erdhaus. Guards: Ken Marshall and Lynn Arnett.

Beatty Lists Ten For Monograms

Ten Don basketball players were recommended for monograms by Coach Blanchard Beatty today in recognition of their performance during the past season.

Included in the group were two two-year lettermen, Verne Rutledge and Ken Marshall, guards, who will be the only losses to the 1938-39 squad.

The lettermen follow:

Guards: Lynn Arnett, Chuck Hall, Del Holan, and Kenny Marshall.

Center: Cy Leivermann.

Forwards: Ted DeVelbiss, Russell Duffel, Art Heinisch, Verne Rutledge, and Bob Steele.

Professional Baseball First Organized By News Writer

With the opening of baseball season for the Dons on April 1, it is interesting to note that the first professional baseball team was organized by a newspaper writer.

In 1871, Henry Chadwick, sports editor on a New York city paper, formed an association to organize a professional baseball league. It was here that the sport was given its start in the money-making world.

MODERN GODFATHER

Concerning articles in the newspapers dealing with wage difficulties of star performers, Chadwick has been the godfather, as well as the breadwinner, to many large salaried big-leaguers.

After the pro game began to win popularity, it naturally became subject to many changes. For instance, in 1879, the Cincinnati Red's catcher, Allison, used the first catcher's glove behind the plate. Then, in 1883, this same club adopted short pants, because the longer clothes interfered with the player's agility.

CHARGE ADMISSION

Most of the games were played to people who were not charged admission, and after the game, a collection was taken up for the players to divide. But, in 1859, Brooklyn began to charge customers 50 cents, and this was the first known charged admission to a baseball game. It was the start of one of the largest money-making sports ever conceived.

Baseball quickly became the most popular of all American sports. It is a game where color, speed, timing, and thinking are paramount features.

GAME LEGITIMATIZED

There have been comparatively few scandals, but as a precaution to a gambler's bribing players to throw games so that a large bet may be won, Judge Kenashaw Landis was made the supreme ruler of baseball.

OUTSHINE PRESIDENT

Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Rogers Hornsby, George Sisler, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Dizzy Dean, and Hank Greenberg are names which have been played up in the newspaper more times than the name of the president of the United States, because they were outstanding baseball players.

Basketball Rise In Popularity Credited To Rule Changes

By HAROLD BARRETT

Basketball has rapidly become one of the most popular of the American sports largely because it has been subjected to changes to sure its popularity.

When the game was first conceived by Dr. James Naismith, he called the game Indoor Rugby, but one of his first players suggested that it be called "basketball," so that name was adopted.

Then to conform to the speed at which the game is noted, there have been a general change of practically all the fundamental rules. One recent major change, is the elimination of the center-ump. Another is the ten second rule for the ball to progress from the back court to the center line, and a three second limit for the offensive man to be in the free throw circle.

All of these rule changes have been made to speed up the game and keep the interest of the spectator enlivened. And judging from the record attendance of the public to the games this year, these changes have been beneficial to the game.

Naturally, because of the great amount of speed now required to play the game, there have been several outstanding players produced which have added color to basketball. For instance, Hank Lusietti, Stanford's ace basketball player, has broken practically every world's record for high scoring in a single game, and over a period of a year. But, if he had not played under the benefit of these rule changes, he might have been only a mediocre player.

Basketball has been recently introduced into the Latin American countries, and according to reports, it is rapidly becoming the most popular sport in those sections. As long as the game retains its elastic changeability, basketball will continue as the fastest, cleverest, shiftest, and most popular of American sport events.

Not ALL Valuable

This is an adult world.

Yet in spite of this fact, Youth has made its way, struggling, working, defeating obstacles. But Youth has often succeeded at the expense of maturity.

In commercial life, young men and women have replaced older, more experienced workers—all because of "ambition," "cheerfulness," "enthusiasm," and "care of personal appearances." But, according to a recent survey, men past 40 are preferred because of their willingness to tackle unpleasant tasks, loyalty and ability to take criticism, and of the amount of work produced.

This is an encouraging sign because it shows that the price of Youth should not be placed too highly insofar as certain angles of work are concerned. It shows that, as the survey indicates, "at 40 or 50, life has pretty well schooled a man in the necessity of cooperation. Experience has endowed 40-plus with skill that younger men lack in getting on with all kinds of people; it has taught him a technique of adjusting himself to new situations that baffle the inexperienced."

Youth, then, is a period of gaining experience for the future. Business needs the freshness of Youth and the experience of maturity, and a true balance of both is necessary.—The Editor.

Congratulations, Clubs!

Congratulations are in order to all women's service clubs for their able assistance in helping Phi Theta Kappa's Student Loan Fund drive.

Through food sales, teas, and other services, the clubs can do genuine good for the college. It is with extreme pride that we are able to point out this service done by the women's organizations.

As we understand it, the Spinsters, Las Gitanas, Piloteers, Moavs, and Las Meninas are those who aided the honor society. Again, we say, congratulations, and keep up the good work!—The Editor

Lost to the World...

O. O. McIntyre is lost to the world.

Odd was an American and yet his "hair trigger" sense of humor, and his reminiscent style of portraying life was not representative of a single race or a single creed. It was the reflection of something that is too unfamiliar to a tumultuous world. It was the reflection of what some know as "the better side of man."

And so... Odd McIntyre has gone. If he could have foreseen his own passing he would doubtless have scribbled some message of farewell on the pages of his notebook in the language of the old English diarist Samuel Pepys, whom he loved to quote... "and having done my task I am yet sore tired... And so to bed."—M. H.

But It's True

WHERE NATIVES WALK ON FIRE!!
IN TAHITI, PERFORMERS OF CEREMONIES APPEAR TO BE WALKING ON RED-HOT COALS... ACTUALLY THEY ARE TREADING ON STONES MADE OF VESICULAR BASALT, WHICH MAY BECOME RED-HOT ON THE BOTTOM AND—BECAUSE THEY ARE POREOUS AND NON-CONDUCTIVE REMAIN COMPARATIVELY COOL ON TOP!!

During one year 99,000 persons were killed and $65,000 permanently injured as a result of accidents in the United States, according to the National Safety Council. Property damage, wage loss and medical expense resulting from these same accidents amounted to $3,000,000,000.

Are Crew Members Aboard "Stranger" STUDENTS TELL OF ALASKA

It was last June when a group of about 50 Sea Scouts bid "adieu" to parents and friends, and boarded Captain Fred E. Lewis' Stranger, a 230 ft. converter freighter, anchored in Balboa Bay. They left the warm beach to journey deep into northern waters—beyond the Arctic Circle, making a total of 9,500 miles for the complete voyage.

Listed in the "Sea Scout crew" were Frank Was and Howard Moore, jaycee student who, after returning recently, enrolled for the second semester as freshmen.

WAS IS FIREMAN

Was acted as fireman, in the Stranger's engine room. His duties were to tend the steam-operated generators and pumps, meanwhile keeping an eye on one of the two huge diesels which powered the vessel.

Moore's duties kept him in the galley, acting as steward for the first part of the trip, later being promoted to third cook. He also acted as spokesman for the two in narrating the highlights of the cruise.

STOP IN WASHINGTON

"Our first stop was at Point Angelus, Wash.," Moore began. "Then we went on to Unimak Pass, in the Aleutians. We visited the government seal rookery at St. Paul's isle. Furs are shipped from here to the 'States.' We got our first glimpse of real Eskimos at King Island. They impressed me as being slightly oriental looking. Most Eskimos are also rather short and heavy-set.

"We touched on Cape Prince of Wales, the most westerly point in North America. Captain Lewis dropped anchor at the Diomed Islands where we found that we were between two international boundaries and two date lines, both of which were two miles apart. We picked up two Eskimos guides for walrus hunting.

TRADE FOR FURS

"The fellows went ashore at Deering and traded with the natives for furs and ivory. One interesting thing is that every town along the barren stretch of Alaska has a telephone and an airplane."

Pushing north until the ice packs forced them to stop, the party began their trip home. Stops on the way gave the group opportunities to see Kodiak bears, walruses, and reindeer and to catch different kinds of fish.

In summing up their impressions of the trip, both students stated that they would go again if given the opportunity.—TOM POWELL

Teaches King In College FLINT KNOWS FAROUK

Having taught an English course to Egyptian King Farouk I while instructing in Robert's College, Egypt, Calvin O. Flint, dean of men, today revealed interesting highlights in the young king's life.

"The youthful ruler is a rather serious student, and his existence was rather secluded from the other college students," Mr. Flint said.

He is popular with the younger generation most particularly because he is not adverse to breaking a few of the extremely old and worn-out Moslem traditions the dean of men disclosed.

Some of these older practices included that a wife should not attend the wedding of a King could have as many wives as he wished, that the wife must wear a veil all times while in public and when traveling, the wives were to be sealed in a private car where no one could see them except the King and the keepers.

"Farouk has eliminated most of these customs by having only one wife, and by allowing her to go about in public unveiled, and when traveling, she is his constant companion," he stated.

"However," the dean continued, "the Moslem religious sanction for the marriage was given in that the supreme religious authority, Sheik Mustafa El Moraghi, presided at the wedding ceremony where the marriage was concluded after the bride's father and the King pressed each other's right thumbs."

The King is considered one of the wealthiest men in the East and he gave a dowry a sum equivalent to $257,000 a half of the dowry. The other half is payable to the bride's father in case the ruler should want a divorce.

"Farouk in recent governmental crisis has shown considerable efficiency in handling important affairs, and with the support of the younger, powerful organizations, his power and influence will reach a far greater degree than that exercised by any other ruler excepting Japan's," Mr. Flint concluded.—HAROLD BARRETT
